Your Information and Your Safety Fact Sheet

Your Information

- Sharing relevant information can be critical to managing your safety.
- Information sharing procedures will be explained to you and your consent will be sought when engaging with relevant services.
- Generally, your information will not be shared without your consent. But if there is a serious threat to an individual’s life, health safety or welfare, your information may be shared without your consent to lessen or prevent this serious threat.
- Your information may also be shared without consent if this information is linked to a child victim survivor of family violence and it is necessary to assess or manage family violence risk to that child.
- If your information is shared without your consent, it will be done so in a manner that promotes your safety and takes into account your views, where appropriate, safe and reasonable.
- When appropriate, safe and reasonable you will be notified about your information being shared.

Information shared with you

- An organisation may share information with you about the perpetrator of family violence to assist you manage your own safety or that of your children.
- You are NOT permitted to use the information provided to you for any purpose other than managing your safety.
- You should not share the information you receive in ways that are unrelated to managing your safety (e.g. sharing on social media). Sharing your information with the wrong person could affect your or others safety.
- Information can be shared with members of your safety management network as required, but only as it relates to implementing your relevant safety plans. If information is provided to a third party, you must inform the third party that the information can only be used to manage your safety or that of your children.

ISEs should reference the Ministerial Guidelines for the Family Violence Information Sharing Scheme when using this resource.